The steam launch from the navy-yard, detailed for service in the health department, started down the river at 10 o'clock yesterday morning with Medical-Inspector Meade and Chief Clerk McGinn on board. The party spent the day along the river making their headquarters near the magazine. During the day the two officials of the health office paid a visit to Alexandris and held a short conference with the health authorities of that city, in which the latter stated that in case of the appearance of any vessel supposed to be infected they would detain her in Virginia waters. The inspecting party from Washington returned to the city at dark. Nothing was seen or heard of the schooner Emma J. An Interesting Surgical Operation Dr. Carroll Morgan yesterday afternoon performed on one of our well-known citizens one of the most successful operations known to the profession. The putient has been complaining for a week past of a most distressing earache, which increased to such an extent that he was compalled to call on Dr. Morgan, that he was compelled to call on Dr. Morgan, who removed three-live maggets from his car. There are but six cases of this kind on record, and its success reflects great credit on the dec-tor. The maggets were incubated from larvie deposited by a fly which entered his ear about two weeks ago. Dr. Morgan's office has been visited by a great many of our leading phy-sicians to view the maggets, which are still alive and feeding on small pieces of meat.

The B. & O. Red-Book-Its Value as a Text-Book for Political Reference and Its Exceeding Beauty as a Work of Typographi

The Baltimore & Ohio, since Mr. Lord The Baltimore & Ohio, since Mr. Lord assumed sway of the Passenger Department, has most emphatically come to the front in taking and at the same time elegant advertising matter. Recognizing the elevation of taste in matters of an advertising character and the demand as well for something of more value than the mere setting forth of the advantages of the road, the B. & O. has just issued what it terms the "Red-Book." It is beyond all comparison the eleverest thing of the kind ever issued by a railroad company, and not only this, but as a specimen of typographical art ever issued by a railroad company, and not only this, but as a specimen of typographical aritis a perfect gem. The cover, designed and engraved by the American Bank-note Company, and the book itself from the press of Knight & Leonard very many persons will keep it for its beauty alone. But while the artistic has been the aim in the external appearance, the contents of the little work will be found of the utmost value from now until the close of the present political stringgle. Without pretentions, and simply setting forth facts, the B. & O. Red-Book is incomparably the handient and most compact political fext-book of the campaign. Com-incomparably the handiest and most compact political text-book of the campaign. Compiled, results reached and arranged by an old journalist of many years' experience in political statistics the states are so placed and the details so carefulls' attended to that at a glance one comprehends the situation in each state. First, the vote of each party for president in 1876 is given, with the total vote of the state, the impority and the electoral vote. Next come the details of the latest election for state officers followed by the political comparate officers. Sext come the details of the latest electron for state officers, followed by the political complexion of the legislature, with the fact noted that a United States senator is to be elected this winter, if such be the case. Then comes the result in each congressional district, with foot-notes and concise that the situation in the different districts is at once apparent. Finally, the population of the state in 1870 is noted, fol-—A colored woman named Anna Miller was fixed $10 or thirty days by Judge Bundy yestorday for keeping a disorderly house in Johnson's row, in the alley between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets and E and F streets.
